HEADLINERS TONIGHT.

Vaudeville.
Hippodrome ..... Three New Acts
Photoplays.
Nelson ..... Heart's Desire
Princess ..... The Clodhopper
Dixie ..... The Plow Woman

THREE generations of one family in a single Metro wonderplay is believed to establish a record in the world of motion pictures. It is not unusual for two generations of a family to be represented in the same picture, but three generations is unusual. In "Life's Whirlpool," the forthcoming Metro wonderplay in which Ethel Barrymore is starred, Electa Drouant, Hazel Drouant and Richard Orr are cast. Hazel Drouant is the mother of three-year-old Richard Orr, whose artistic work in this Metro wonderplay caused Lionel Barrymore, the director and a man with unlimited stage and screen experience, to predict an exceptionally bright future for him.

New Vaudeville Acts at Hipp.

Three new vaudeville acts are at the Hippodrome for the last half of the week starting today. All three acts are classified as novelties, and they offer an excellent variety making a well balanced program. Tom Kuma, is headlined in a Japanese novelty act. Two Bonlee Sisters appear in a high class novelty singing and dancing skit and The Lillettas have a thrilling novel stunt.

Marie Doro in "Heart's Desire."

"Heart's Desire," at the Nelson today, presents Marie Doro as a Britany peasant completely surrounded by roses, wooden-shoed children and picturesque cows. It is a dainty little idyl with a plot which is too slight to be taken seriously, but which furnishes a series of charming pictures with Marie Doro in the foreground. She devotes all her delicate charm to wheedling the grouchy old Slegneur of her island into a better humor and thus gaining justice for her starving people. Meanwhile, the nephew of this landlord has fallen in love with her, but she believes herself too humble to be the bride of a gentleman and refuses to accept her happiness until she saves her lover and the aristocrat's family from a peasant mob. Involved in these complications are the usual peasant lover and the jealous fiance of the hero, and the plot is sprinkled liberally with accidental shootings—first of a cow which is mistaken for a deer and then of the heroine, who is believed to be a poacher. There is much meditation of the two lovers over the language of flowers, and the title itself is taken from the name of a rare rose which the heroine cherishes. It is all very pretty and very naive and perfectly adapted to the lovely and elusive personality of Marie Doro in her less emotional moods.

Charles Ray in "The Clodhopper."

Charles Ray, who demonstrated that he was no bush leaguer in "The Pinch Hitter," has further opportunity to show his ability in "The Clodhopper," which is showing at the Princess today. In this new Triangle play by Monte M. Katterjohn he shows his versatility as a dancer by "stepping" his way to success in a Broadway musical revue.

The scenes of the play are laid on a New England farm and in New York city. Many elaborate settings are used to represent the cabarets and the gay restaurants that go to make up New York's night life. Some of the most interesting scenes take place in a theater where a musical revue is being produced. Ray as the country bumpkin makes the hit of the show. Among those supporting him in the large cast are Margery Wilson, Lydia Knott, Charles French and Thomas Guise.

Splendid Bookings for the Hipp.

Next week's attraction at the Hippodrome is Fred Carmello's Beauty Bugs Company with a fine string of classic artists, to be followed later in the season by such attractions as "The Honolulu Girl," "Razze Dazle," Harry Allen and company, the Great Richards and others of like quality. Since the reopening of the Hippodrome Manager Burka has presented a steady stream of superior attractions and the result is beginning to show in the increased attendance. A continuation of Mr. Burka's policy will undoubtedly be appreciated by Fairmont theatre goers.

In next week's attraction will appear such artists as Fred Carmello, comedian; Lillian Washburn, formerly of the Washburn sisters, popular in comic opera and vaudeville; Mlle. Marcelle, surprise Prima donna; Violet De Selve, premiere danseuse; Jewell and Nelson, singing trio; Doris Lynn, dainty soubrette and Del Gibson, character impersonator.

Mary McLaren at Princess.

In the Princess feature today called "The Plow Woman," Andy MacTavish is a pioneer, a stern, God-fearing Scotchman who held that women were but slaves to men, and that they needed no education. He was power supreme over his little daughter Mary and his wife, whose failure to present him with a son had damned her in his eyes. When she gave birth to another girl baby, Andy became so violent that the little woman passed away, leaving only Mary to care for the new child, named Ruth. She did this with every bit of energy and love in her whole being. Throughout the story her sacrifices in her sister's behalf create a profound sympathetic atmosphere which is not even relieved in the closing climax. Her sister finds happiness but in the fade out Mary is shown still following the plow. If there is any cheer in her life it must have come through her sister's happiness and a softening to some extent of the old pioneer's heart. There are some splendid scenes and the acting is very good. Mary McLaren plays the leading feminine role.

jewels and the palaces in Petrograd it would go far to wipe out all the national debt it has at present.

More than that, I am told that there was a meeting not long ago in Petrograd of wealthy men, bankers, manufacturers, exploiters, merchants and high lights in big business, what there is of it; and when they came to compare notes they found that the interests they represent could absorb it. It need be, the greater part of the debt so far created by the war.

At present most of these resources are untouched by taxation. It is evident, therefore, that the assets back of this real Russia are almost unlimited.

No one need worry about that. Also, as to chaos in Russia. There isn't any chaos.

There are elements in the newly created political life that differ as to the details of the policy the government should follow.
